Excerpt from The Assistant of Education, Vol. 4: Religious and Literary; Intended for the Use of Young Persons Have been mistaken. Jerusalem was a waste, and the sceptre of Israel had departed: its wretched inhabitants, who for their idolatry and corruption had gone into captivity, were not likely to remember in a heathen land the God whom in the precincts of his own temple they had forgotten, and were in all probability serving the gods of Assyria and Babylon; at least we have no intimation to the contrary, as to the mass of this outcast people. But he had yet a remnant, a little flock, a people who were his. In the idolatrous city of Babylon, in the palace of the great Nebuchadnezzar, four persons we know there were who served the God of Abraham - for though there might be more, it is certain no more than four are spoken of. These were of the royal line of Judah, but now like the rest of their nation. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
