Reviews

This publication is fantastic. We have read through and I am certain that I will be planning to read it again and again down the road. You won't feel monotony at any time of your respective time (that's what catalogs are for concerning when you request me).

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The following script was originally created for a day camp held for middle school aged students. Using Jaques speech in As You Like It as the foundation for the script, the piece explores the various stages that people may walk through during a lifetime. Each section explores either concepts in the monologue or specific scenes from one of Shakespeare's plays. Mixing the serious with the silly, students explore the humanity of Shakespeare's characters, as well as getting an introduction to some of his most famous plays. The original production used limited costumes and props, focusing on the students acting and allowing each actor to play multiple roles. The flexibility of the script allows for a range in the number of students needed to do the piece, though six or seven is an ideal group. The CHORUS characters are created to help transition the performance through each Act, as well as introducing themes and ideas explored in each of the scenes. Their presence is similar to that of the Greek Chorus, used in ancient Greek plays, to help guide the audience throughout the performance. Lasting about 15-20 minutes, depending on the number of students, the pacing is quick and provides a starting conversation for students to further explore Shakespeare's work as well as introducing them to working as an ensemble.
